I'm finding that there is lots of contradictory evidence out there about what has the greatest bang for the buck in terms of improvement for students. There doesn't seem to be a clear consensus about what "works" and what doesn't. I use different evidence depending on my goal for looking.

alignment with pillar

At some point I found myself wishing for more specific information about how those strategies were implemented

How did it look like?

Are there examples of previous schools that used ESSA before that we can refer to?

We need help with identifying research based strategies for secondary schools

How many research studies should we consider for each pillar?
